This research project analyzes the conditions that led to the creation of the original insurrection led by Augusto C. Sandino, and the emergence of his image as a motivation for the creation of a democratic society. This study also analyzes the Sandinista Revolution of 1979 and the reasons for their electoral defeat in 1990. We will also examine today’s Sandinista government and the renewed calls for democracy.

Angel Vallejos is an MA student in the Latin American Studies Program at the University of Miami. Prior to attending the University of Miami, Angel received his B.A. in Political Science from Florida International University. Angel worked on numerous federal and local elections and was a community organizer for a labor union.

For more information please contact:

Professor Joaquín Roy
Chair of the Committee
(305) 284-3266
jroy@miami.edu

Angel Vallejos
axv762@miami.edu

William Pestle
Director of the Latin American Studies Program

Ambler H. Moss, Department of International Studies, Member of the Committee
Eduardo Elena, Department of History, Member of the Committee